

Whittier Access Project wins major national award

The American Society of Civil Engineers awarded its 2001 Outstanding Civil Engineering Achievement Award to the Whittier Access Project, which provides first-time highway access to the town of Whittier, Alaska. The Anchorage project team, along with staff from several Northwest Region offices, delivered design and construction-related services using approaches that minimized impacts of the new infrastructure on the scenic, environmentally sensitive surroundings.

The Whittier Access Project team includes:

Front row—Al Brooks, Dan Sterley,
Kelly Merrill, J.B. Hardwick

Back Row—Lisa Hoff, Derek Christianson, Rob Crotty, Keo Bailey